Judge Buck Takes Racing Questions For Consideration

A test case to determine whether or not the certificate type of wagering is permissible under the laws of California was heard before the Superior court of this county yesterday. The case was that of James McDonald, stock salesman and racehorse man. McDonald was arrested at the Tanforan race track by Sheriff J. J. McGrath and charged with gambling. The arrest had been arranged beforehand by official of the racing club in order to test the law before the courts. McDonald volunteered to be the one arrested. Sheriff McGrath was notified, and when he arrived he found McDonald conducting a regular sporting event. McDonald was taken into custody and was arraigned before Judge of the Peace Rudolph Rappey. Following the arraignment he was brought to the jail here and held in lieu of $100 cash bail which he refused to post. He was later released by a writ of habeas corpus secured from Judge Buck by Walter Linforth, attorney for the racing club. The prosecution was conducted by District Attorney Franklin Scott, and his assistant, Edmund Scott. Linforth asked that the charges against McDonald be dropped, for he stated, the law of California did not preclude this type of gambling. Scott argued that this petition be denied, for he stated, if the case were dismissed, it would be impossible for the court to again rule on the matter. However, McDonald was found guilty by the Superior court, the defendants would appeal the case to the Supreme court, and the ruling of that body would settle once and for all the legality of race horse gambling in California. The case was submitted on briefs before Judge Buck yesterday and is now under his consideration.

SAN BRUNO CHIEF ACCUSED BY COP FOLLOWING FIGHT

San Bruno, reputed to be the most bellicose community on the peninsula, again broke into the limelight this week, and again the cause of the notoriety was a shake up in the city government. This time, however, the immediate cause of the disturbance was in the police department, and centered around the dismissal from the force of Officer Harry Alford B. Chief of Police Maher. Following his discharge from the force of Alford came to Redwood City and made charges of misconduct of officer against the chief of police before District Attorney Swart and Judge Buck. Alford charged that Maher allowed slot machines to be operated, bootleg establishments to run, and other vice resorts to flourish. That when he conducted a raid in San Bruno he was beaten over the head by another police officer at the direction of Chief Maher. That 14 blind pigs, a still and a house of ill fame are operated openly in San Bruno. Proprietors of three establishments in San Bruno yesterday pled guilty to the possession of slot machines in the court of Justice of the Peace Farrell of South San Francisco, following their arrest on complaints drawn up by District Attorney Swart as the result of Alford's testimony. All three were given fines of $100 by Judge Farrell. It is understood that the grand jury will be asked to investigate the charges made by Alford. An unusual development of the case yesterday was the wearing out of a warrant for the arrest of Maher by Alford in the court of Judge Rudolph Rappey of San Bruno. Alford asked for the warrant on a charge of battery. The arrest of a chief of police will be unparalleled case in the annals of this district.

JOHN GILL ACCEPTS SCHOOL POSITION

John Gill, vice principal of the Sequoia Union High School, mentioned last week as a likely successor to Row W. Cloud, who resigned last week as city superintendent of schools of this city, on Friday accepted the offer of the position made to him by the board of school trustees. Gill has been connected with the high school since 1914, and is considered one of the ablest executives of the institution. He was for many years manual arts instructor in the high school later he devoted his attention to the wood shop, the machine work being taken over by George Bell. When the new school was completed, and the need of an increased office force became apparent, Gill was chosen as vice principal, a position which he has since held and filled with marked ability. The place as vice-principal of the high school has been filled by the appointment of Donald Bogle, who in turn has been succeeded as wood shop instructor by Adrian Carlton. Carlton is a graduate of the Sequoia Union High School and also of Stanford. He has had a number of years' experience as manual training instructor. Gill has earned a wide reputation as an educator, is a skilled disciplinarian and has a faculty of inspiring himself into the hearts of his pupils. They admire him and it will be hard for them to part with him. Many flattering offers have been made him but he always refused them preferring to remain in Redwood City. The grammar school trustees are to be congratulated in their selection and while the high school loses a splendid instructor, the grammar school gains a capable principal. Donald Boggie, who succeeds to the position as vice-principal of the high school, has been on the job for three years and has distinguished himself as an able instructor. His appointment has met with universal approval both by the students and by his fellow instructors. A meeting of the realtors of this district with the officials of the San Francisco Bay Terminals Co. to consider the pricing of land in the Port San Francisco development was held Wednesday afternoon in the office of Lambert & Walter in this city. Representatives were present from San Mateo, Burlingame, Palo Alto and Redwood City realty boards. The committee consisted of the following realtors of the peninsula: Redwood City, A. D. Walsh, Emmett Donnelly, Dan Stafford; Burlingame, W. O. Lang, J. L. Corley; San Mateo, James A. Lee, D. A. Raybould; Palo Alto, Norwood Smith and F. W. Aust. A. D. Walsh was elected president of the committee and Emmett Donnelly was chosen secretary. F. D. Cornell represented the San Francisco Bay Terminals Co. This committee is now evaluating the various pieces of property composing the Port San Francisco development. Several large manufacturing concerns are already securing tentative locations for plants in this bay development and actual work on at least twenty manufacturing plants is forecasted as soon as the development work can be accomplished. STARTING BUSINESSES HERE Eric Gustavson, a graduate Swedish measure of Stockholm Sweden, is starting business here this week, giving Swedish treatments and electric light baths at his residence at 52 Hillview. Gustavson has been engaged in this line of work for a number of years in San Francisco, where he maintains the Swedish Health Baths. Plans for the business block to be constructed on Broadway on the site of the Central school for Hare, Brewer & Clark, Inc., are being drawn by Reid Bros, architects of San Francisco. It was announced this week. The plans are being drawn in two separate units. One unit consists of a one and two story class C store building to be built at an estimated cost of $150,000. The other unit is a class A building to be used as a school. This building will be built at the same time as the other block and will also cost approximately $150,000. The structure will be leased by Ellis J. Arkush, proprietor of the Sequoia Theatre of this city as well as other show houses in the main towns of the peninsula. Bids on both buildings will be called for shortly, it was announced. Work is being rushed on the new building to be used as an elementary and intermediate school. As soon as this building is completed, the present Central school will be removed. The property on which the old building stands was purchased last February by Hare, Brewer & Clark, Inc., agents for Edgewood Park, and the school trustees were given until January 1, 1928, to dispose of the old school. The Central school was built in 1924 and for some time after the formation of the Sequoia High School district, it served to house both the high school and the grammar grades. Later when the high school secured a separate building, the old structure served all children in the eight grades of the grammar school until 1916, when the Washington school on the Woodside road and the Lincoln school on Whipple avenue were built and somewhat relieved the crowded conditions then prevailing in the Central school. When the new high school was built, the grammar school district purchased the old high school building on Broadway and has used it since then as an intermediate school containing the 7th and 8th grades of the school. For many years the board of trustees of the school district realized that the property supplied by the school was too valuable as a business site to be held for school purposes, while the cheaper locations would serve better for school purposes. The old wooden structure was also not considered as safe as could be desired for a school and was rapidly becoming over-crowded in spite of large additions to the other schools of the district and the recent opening of the Garfield school on the Middlefield road. The new school is located on Duane street, south of the Sequoia Union High School grounds, and will cost when completed around $150,000. A Coffey was the architect of the school building.

$25,000 Damage Suit Follows Accident

James M. Jensen of 2679 Bryant street, San Francisco, on Wednesday filed through his attorneys, Sullivan, Sullivan and Theo. Roache, a suit for $25,000. The defendant in the action is C. P. At an inquest held on the 16th of August at the parlors of the James Crowe Co., it was found from testimony adduced that the accident was the result of the careless manner in which the defendant was handling his car. More than $8,000 in stakes have already been promised for next year's show at Palo Alto, Fleming said.

Fresno and Visalia will both have representatives before the State Railroad Commission next month in separate moves to take over private water systems and operate them as municipal utilities. Hearings will begin September 1 in the case of Fresno, which proposes to acquire the Fresno City Water Corporation, now owned by the California Water Service Company. Visalia's condemnation proceedings, in which it is proposed to take over the Visalia Water Company, will start later in the month. P. E. Dufour, valuation engineer of the commission, will preside at both evaluation proceedings.

California's new law designed to speed up selection of juries in criminal cases was given its first test in the choice of a jury in five minutes in Sacramento last week and resulted in the case of John Valdez, accused of assault with intent to commit murder. Instead of submitting to lengthy questioning by state and defense attorneys, as in the past, the prospective jurors were briefly examined by Superior Judge J. R. Hughes, under the new statute urged through the recent Legislature by the state commission for revision of criminal procedure.

Further discussion regarding the awarding of a private franchise for the erection of a bay bridge between Candlestick Point and Alameda county was postponed for two weeks following a brief meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors last week.

Preliminary plans are being prepared for a six-story Class A reinforced concrete medical building to contain approximately 50 suites and a solarium to be erected on the northeast corner of Van Ness avenue and Jackson street, San Francisco, at a cost of $500,000.

How We Get Aluminum

ONE who was told that Arkansas was the principal source of bauxite in the United States would probably yawn wearily and ask, "what of it?" But if told that the same state produced most of the ore on which the rich and swiftly-growing aluminum industry is based, he would show much keener interest. Little has been written about the methods of producing aluminum, so that, while it is a commonplace in every household in the form of pans, kettles, coffee-pots and cups, most people take it for granted or, possibly, assume that it is a mixture of other metals.

Aluminum, known in British countries as aluminia, was first produced in the United States in 1883, although in that year only 83 pounds was produced. But in 1890 an inventor by the name of Hall perfected a process for extracting metallic aluminum from its ores, and so laid the basis for a swiftly-growing industry. The patents were obtained by the Pittsburgh Reduction Company, forerunner of the Aluminum Company of America. By 1901 the United States was producing 3,243 metric tons of this metal, while in 1918, at the peak of war needs for copper and other metals which aluminum can replace, it reached 102,000 metric tons. As the war demand eased off, this volume dropped again to about 52,000 tons in 1922.

Bauxite, from which aluminum is made, occurs in Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia, as well as in Arkansas in the United States, and there also are considerable quantities of it in South America, some of which have recently been acquired by the Aluminum Company of America. Ore production in Arkansas was 405,890 tons in 1923 and 28,810 tons in the three other American states in which this valuable mineral is mined. Virginia also has some bauxite, although it has not yet figured to any great extent in commerce.

Aluminum is known chiefly for its excellence as a conductor of heat or electricity and for its rust-resistant qualities.

Lately, however, aluminum has found its greatest usefulness in automobile body construction, where its lightness, together with a considerable strength, gives it marked importance as less weight and consequent higher mileage per gallon are sought by motor car manufacturers. It can only be used, however, at points where it has far less toughness than steel.

One of the most interesting facts about aluminum is that ordinary clay, such as we all see almost daily, is an oxide rich in aluminum, but is an "ore" that is useless outside the laboratory, as no method of reducing it to metal has as yet been found that was also cheap enough to warrant commercial exploitation.

Discovery of Nickel at Cobalt

BY COMPARISON with the amounts of iron, copper, or steel used in the industries of the world, the quantities of nickel that enter into commerce are comparatively small. In 1887 the total consumption was set at 1,000 tons a year; and at that time a single concern, the Societe le Nickel, owned by the Rothschilds, produced more nickel than the world could consume, deriving it from mines in New Caledonia, the French penal colony.

For some years prior to that time there had been interest in iron ores that occurred north of Sudbury, in eastern Canada, north of Lake Erie. These ores also contained copper. Efforts to smelt them into a satisfactory iron proved futile, however, because of the large amount of sulphur in the ore. When expert technological men shifted from the iron to the copper ores, they were still disappointed. In the copper was some whitish substance which hardened it to so great an extent that it was of little use.

Various chemists and metallurgists worked on this problem, and presently it was discovered that the element in question was nickel. The worthless iron ores were to become one of the most important sources of this metal in all the world.

In those days nickel was chiefly a decorative metal.

Presently the war gods took a hand. Makers of armor plate for battleships discovered that steel in which some nickel was included was much harder and more resistant to shell fire than ordinary steel plates. This so increased the demand for the nickel that the Canadian companies entered an era of great prosperity. Some of the larger of them were merged into a concern named the International Nickel company. Other Canadian deposits were owned by the Mond family, English millionaires. And the demand had grown so large that all three concerns prospered, including the French company, although each was producing as much or more nickel as would have supplied the world but a few years earlier.

As a by-product of the Canadian nickel smelters considerable quantities of copper are recovered, but the iron ores have not yet proved satisfactory to be smelted into pig iron.

Cobalt blue, the brilliant coloring matter that is familiar to almost everyone, is an oxide of nickel, and the principal city in the Canadian nickel district is appropriately named for it, Cobalt. There is also a considerable extraction of silver in that district.

Damocles, a Flatterer

Damocles was a flatterer in the court of Dionysius of Syracuse, says the Dearborn Independent. By way of answer to the constant praises of the happiness of kings, Dionysius seated him at a royal banquet, with a sword hung over his head by a single horsehair. In the midst of the banquet Damocles, chancing to look upward, saw the sharp and naked weapon. This immediately taught him that flattery was a dangerous course to pursue when dealing with kings.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 26, 1927.

WHEN President Coolidge said: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928," it caused our country to consider what would happen if our present sound industrial structure and returning farm stability was tampered with, under a changed national policy.

It makes no difference with what political party we are affiliated, we still must earn our bread and butter through regular and steady employment. It may be good sport for politicians or political parties to heckle each other with criticism. But when a public official of whatever party, who has guided his country through a troubled period in the world's history with increasing prosperity and reduced taxes, decides voluntarily to turn the reins of government over to a successor, he shifts the responsibility for continuation of sound government onto the shoulders of every citizen—they must express their opinion.

Some persons thought it profitable to criticize President Coolidge for showing a favorable attitude toward business development. Others saw humor in commenting on his New England thrift. The Political wind-bag felt he was strengthening his own position by poking fun at the President's retiring manner, laconic statements and disinclination to talk except when required to do so.

But that is all passed. It is now up to the critics and the admirers of President Coolidge, in both parties, to see if they can match his record for sound administration of the greatest corporation in the world, namely, the United States Government. The stockholders of this corporation, the citizens of the United States, today know more about business, more about investments and more about conditions which are necessary to assure steady employment of labor than they ever did before. Most of the campaign thunder and political hocus pocus which was supposed to appeal to the voters in the past, will no longer fill the bill.

The voters of this country are like the baby that has grown out of the celluloid rattle and rubber doll stage—they want more solid meat. Making faces and acting the fool before them on the theory that it will please and amuse them as it sometimes does the small infant, will no longer appeal.

The ten short words uttered by President Coolidge give this nation a year to realize and consider what would happen as the result of any radical break away from a constructive, yet conservative national policy. Banker, factory executive, laboring man, public utility president, railroad manager, clerk and housewife have an equal opportunity to think over the situation and their own positions in the picture.

Republican or Democrat leaders face the responsibility of choosing a qualified executive head for this nation. If the public officials chosen by either party are incompetent, the nation will be the one to suffer.

BE CAREFUL!

WITH accidents increasing by the thousands every year, the subject of their prevention is engaging the earnest attention of individuals, employers, corporations, the press, motor clubs, educational associations, city, state and national organizations.

Falls cause more deaths than any other form of accident, according to the National Safety Council which is a clearing house of information relating to prevention of accidents, with headquarters in Chicago.

Automobile fatalities in the United States approximate 25,000 annually, it being estimated that almost 7,000 children alone were killed by automobiles last year in this country.

In their own homes, thousands of people also lose their lives each year through accidents. Last year the number of such deaths reached 18,000 with falls leading.

A majority of all accidents of every description would be prevented if people would exercise proper care and caution.

ONE PERSON'S CARELESSNESS

ALL the statistics in the world are not half so convincing as one poignant example of what may be caused by the slightest carelessness in the matter of fire. A recently published statement showing the annual loss by matches and smoking to be over fifty millions of dollars, while tremendous and terrible, is likely passed over by the average reader with slight interest.

In Crater Lake National Park, however, there is an example that once seen is a life lesson. At a high point on one of the many scenic drives, a pinnacle from which hundreds of miles of surrounding country can be seen is a sign reading, "The product of one person's carelessness with fire." And stretching away behind the sign is a vast mountain side populated only by blackened stumps, all that is left of what was once a magnificent virgin forest, until a match or cigarette butt was dropped and left unobserved.

It would be a good thing if every inhabitant of this country could stand at that point and see the desolation the raging flames have wrought. We should have no more such signs or reason for them.

Man is Killed by Fall

Falling through a skylight from a roof on which he was working at the plant of the Pacific Portland Cement Company here Sunday, Ira Lynn King, 22, plunged to his death on the cement floor 45 feet below. The young man fell on his head and was killed almost instantly.

An inquest was held Monday at the parlors of the James Crowe Company, where it was stated by Dr. J. L. Ross who attended the deceased that the cause of death was a broken neck and a fractured skull.

King was the son of Mrs. Elizabeth King of Los Angeles and is also survived by the following brothers and sisters, William, Jesse, Ray, George, Minerva, Clara and Mary King, all of Los Angeles. The body was shipped Monday to the latter city for interment.

Eight-seeing Trains Bring Many Tourists

Enough people to populate an entire city saw California last month from a single eight-seeing train, according to F. S. McGinnis, passenger traffic manager for Southern Pacific.

The train is the Daylight Limited, a fast non-stop train running along the scenic California coastline from San Francisco to Los Angeles. During the month 20,288 tourists made the twelve hour daylight trip, which carried them through beautiful Santa Clara valley, past old missions, over mountain ranges and for 113 miles along the edge of the Pacific.

The train is believed to be the fastest non-stop long distance train in the world and in addition to dining cars, all day lunch cars and club cars, has a unique specially constructed observation eight-seeing car for the benefit of tourists.

"Since the war," McGinnis said "this train has gained an international reputation as a western tourist feature and foreign travel agents, our eastern agents report almost invariably wish to travel by it. Its growing fame attracts many to the state."

Thirty-four Counties in Fair Exhibits

Thirty-four counties of California, representing every section of the state from the Mexican line to Oregon and from the coast to the Sierras, will have individual exhibits in the State Fair, September 3 to 10. The exhibits are now under construction in the horticultural building, which has already taken on the "fair time" appearance.

The list of counties exhibiting is as follows:

Alameda, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, Contra Costa, El Dorado, Humboldt, Imperial, Kern, Lake, Lassen, Los Angeles, Monterey, Napa, Orange, Placer, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Francisco, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Shasta, Yuba, Stanislaus, Tuolumne, Ventura, Yolo.

HINTS ON WASHING CAR

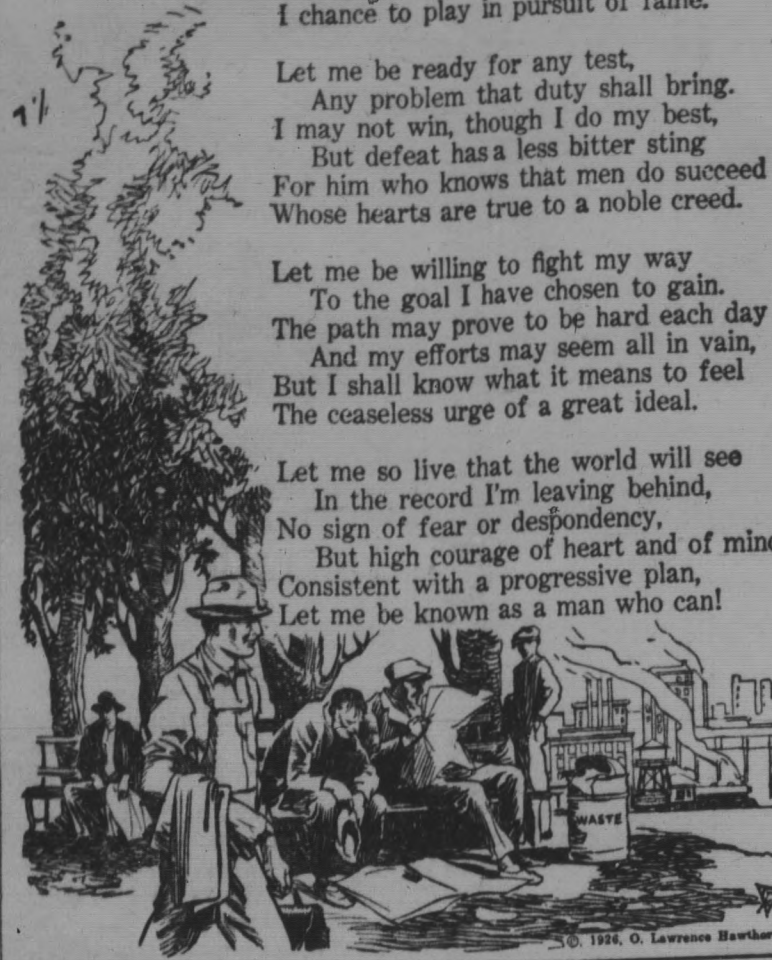

When washing car be careful of use strong soap, or if such soap is used, wash it off immediately after applying. According to the Free Emergency Road Service of the California State Automobile Association, it should be used only for removing grease from the chassis. Clear water and sponge will remove dirt from body of the car.

A MAN WHO CAN

O. LAWRENCE HAWTHORNE

Let me be known as a man who can—
As a man who is eager to try!
I may not finish what I began,
But the spirit of do-it-or-die
Will take me far in whatever game
I chance to play in pursuit of fame.

Let me be ready for any test,
Any problem that duty shall bring.
I may not win, though I do my best,
But defeat has a less bitter sting
For him who knows that men do succeed
Whose hearts are true to a noble creed.

Let me be willing to fight my way
To the goal I have chosen to gain.
The path may prove to be hard each day
And my efforts may seem all in vain,
But I shall know what it means to feel
The ceaseless urge of a great ideal.

Let me so live that the world will see
In the record I'm leaving behind,
No sign of fear or despondency,
But high courage of heart and of mind
Consistent with a progressive plan,
Let me be known as a man who can!

Famous "Death Ray" Crystals Will Be At State Fair

California's famous "death ray" crystals, which the United States government has discovered in controlling explosions at great distances, will be shown at the State Fair, September 3 to 10.

This is announced by Jarvis Lloyd, in charge of the Calaveras County exhibit. The crystals, which are found in large quantities in Calaveras county at Mokelumne Hill, are said to have a power which will revolutionize modern warfare.

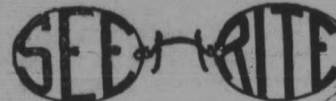

"The government has contracted for thousands of tons of these crystals," said Lloyd "The exact nature of the power found in these crystals has not been divulged by the government, but it is stated that they have the property, when properly controlled, of discharging explosions at a distance of thirty miles."

Calaveras county will also have Helen Turner, girl sculptress, at the exhibit in an exhibition of her work. Among her pieces of sculpture to be shown is "The Pony Express."

Driver Held Blameless For Hiway Death Crash

That Henry Ruffs, driver of the car which on Friday evening struck and killed Henry O. Tiffany of San Mateo on Highway near Baden, was not responsible for the accident, was the verdict of a coroner's jury Saturday.

Ruffs was driving along the highway, it was shown, when Tiffany stepped directly in front of the car.

The injured man was removed to the Mills Memorial hospital, where it was stated that he admitted that he had been drinking five flasks of liquor were found in his clothing. He passed away at the hospital shortly after his arrival there. It was found that an autopsy being made that cause of death was the puncturing of his lungs and liver by the car.

The deceased was a resident of 51 South C. street, San Mateo, was 63 years of age, and was survived by a daughter. Funeral services were held in San Francisco on Monday.

FORMER LOCAL WOMAN DIES IN SAN MATEO

Mrs. Lydia Dugan passed away
 Friday at the Mills Memorial hospital in San Mateo after a long illness. Mrs. Dugan was the widow of the late Charles E. Dugan, who with George R. Sneath, founded the Redwood City Commercial Bank, now the Bank of Italy, about twenty-two years ago.
 Mrs. Dugan was the owner of the Sequoia theatre building and of the building occupied by the telephone exchange.

The deceased was a native of Missouri, and was 79 years of age.
 She was a pioneer resident of this state, having crossed the plains in an ox cart when a young child.
 Funeral services for the aged were held in San Mateo Monday.

High School Notes

While the boys held a sign-up rally for football and basketball in the auditorium Wednesday, the freshmen girls met in the Little Theatre, where Jacqueline Bugge, president of Sequoia Girl Students introduced the commissioners of publications and publicity, and the secretary of S. G. C. Miss Wurz-bach spoke on the girls clubroom, while Miss Boyle, dean of girls discussed uniforms. Miss Bradley, girls coach, also spoke to the freshmen.

Coach Raymon Dimmick was the principal speaker at an Iota Zeta luncheon yesterday. He spoke on his football experience.
 Eugene Bone played several piano solos. Iota Zeta, whose president is Sam Enten, is sponsored by the Redwood City Kiwanis Club.

The first assembly of the year was held yesterday in the Sequoia auditorium with Lloyd Anderson commissioner of student welfare, in charge. New freshmen contributed musical selections to the program.

Wednesday afternoon at 3:35
 the boys and girls councils held separate meetings. The purpose of the boys' meeting was to have new members sign their membership pledges. The girls appointed members for duties.

Commissioner of Finance Morton Brewer reports that the deposits for the first two days reached the amount of $1778, for Student Body cards. S. G. S. dues and towel fees.

Sequoia's gridlers face their first opponents, Cogswell High School on September 9, Admission
 Day. This and other practice games will give the boys the needed experience and confidence with which to play their league games.

Mr. Dimmick, with the assistance of S. S. Mayo, mechanical drawing instructor, is confronted with the problem of turning out a winning aggregation from a bevy of green, inexperienced material.

Speed!

MAN has ever symbolized speed by de-

By the same token, the transmission of with the speed of light. For, truly, your voice by telephone nearby or distant points, travels with the speed of light—instantly.

Long Distance telephone service to over

Dr. A. L. Offield Appointed County Physician by Board

Last Monday the board of supervisors appointed Dr. A. L. Of-field, the widely known Burlingame game physician and surgeon, county physician to take the place of Dr. Wood Baker, who died last week in San Mateo. The appointment was made on motion of Mrs.
 Brown.

The appointment of Dr. Offield has a human interest for the people of Redwood City in that his charming wife is a former Redwood City girl. She was born and raised here and comes from a pioneer family of this place. As Miss Irene Doyle she was a pretty and fascinating girl and the belle of Redwood City. She met the young doctor while he was an intern in St. Mary's hospital training as a professional nurse. The romance ripened into love and the pair were married soon after, coming to Burlingame where the doctor has a large and lucrative practice. Omar Doyle of this city is a brother of Mrs. Offield.
 Her father, the late Peter Doyle was the village blacksmith. During the civil war Doyle organized the Jefferson Cavalry.

The Jefferson Cavalry was the home guard and often the gallant company would dash off to Half-moon Bay to watch the coast for the enemy that might be landed there by warships. Time has taken a heavy toll of the membership, for there is scarcely one left of the famous organization.

Mrs. Offield was a niece of the late Annie Rooney, who in her time was a noted singer and who twenty-five years ago regaled vast audiences in Redwood City and the peninsula with her sweet voice.

Kiwanians Hear Talk On Business Ethics

An address on business ethics was delivered before the members of the Redwood City Kiwanis club Wednesday noon by Erwin Erwin, auditor of Stanford University and district trustee of the Palo Alto Kiwanis club. Erwin was the delegate from the Palo Alto club to the convention of Kiwanis clubs recently held in Memphis, Tenn., and much of his talk was concerning matters pertaining to business ethics discussed at the convention.

The chairman of the meeting was Sam Winkler, manager of the Tribune. D. R. Stafford, president of the Redwood City chamber of commerce, spoke on the development of an aviation school here, and urged all of the Kiwanians to be present at the meeting of the chamber of commerce to be held on Monday.

Dr. J. N. Blood, chairman of the committee which is working on the proposition for securing a hospital for Redwood City, announced a meeting of his committee for tonight. Stafford also reported that he had accepted a challenge for a golf tournament with the Redwood City Exchange Club, and a challenge was also accepted with the Palo Alto club.

Lives of 20 Persons Are Endangered

Six Machines Crash On State Highway

Six machines were damaged and the lives of twenty persons were endangered late last Friday night in a series of crashes on the highway near Menlo Park. The cause of the pile-up of machines was a crash between two machines on the highway which was immediately followed by partial wrecks of four other machines which crashed into the two original cars. Several of the occupants of the cars were slightly injured, and all of the cars suffered minor damages.

Drivers of the automobiles were F. Carlin of Redwood City, Howard Simon of Redwood City, S. R. Johnson of Cupertino, R. F. Howell of Burlingame, J. H. Plummer of Burlingame, and J. T. Teed of San Francisco.

Traffic was tied up for almost 15 minutes as the wreckage was cleared. State Traffic Officer W. J. Riley investigated the crash.

Antone DeBenedetto Found Dead in Creek

When Tony Bertolucci, proprietor of the Redwood City House, went to close a door which he noticed swinging open over the creek behind his barn Tuesday morning he found the body of Antone DeBenedetto in the creek. DeBenedetto had for some years been employed around the Redwood City House and slept in the barn in the rear, which was directly over the creek.

DeBenedetto was a native of Italy and is thought to have been about 70 years of age. He is survived by a son, Stephen DeBenedetto of this city for many years and had been engaged in teaming and other similar work. It was thought at first that the aged man had come to his death by suicide, but it was decided at an inquest held at the parlors of the James Crowe Co. Wednesday morning that the death was caused by accidental drowning when he fell in the water from the door above.

YOUNG CAR THIEFS SENT TO SAN FRANCISCO

Charles Russell, 18, William Moriarty, 18, and Toney Eveshine, 18, all of San Francisco, were turned over to the San Francisco juvenile authorities Monday by Sheriff James J. McGrath. The youths were arrested early this month by Chief of Police Louis Belmont of South Francisco, after they were alleged to have stolen an automobile. They were convicted of taking an automobile without consent of its owner.

NOVELTIES IN HATS FOR FALL;
SPORTS MODES FOR AUTUMN

SEEMS as if hats of many feathers are going to flock together this autumn. At any rate, concerning the new millinery styles, there is no one trimming them more obviously important than that of novelty feathers.

It is the flat effects which are favored, with one exception, that of the shaving brush effect, which sometimes shoots out from the side of the very small hat. Other than this, the new hats are trimmed with applique feather novelties, some simulating feather novelties, some simulating wings, cunning pinwheel effects, and there are many pasted feather bands. Outstanding in preference are tiny and animals and conventional designs. Edges finished with brass mountings are also in good style. The presence of brass or silver or steel or gold on the hat answers to the touch of metal which prevails so conspicuously throughout all costumes this season.

With the coming of autumn society takes to equestrian paths with renewed enthusiasm, while fancy turns to chic togs for this very fashionable sport.

There is a vast difference between formal and informal riding outfits. Of course if a woman is going in stately for health, vigor and fun she hackle pads used either singly or in numbers.

French milliners are emphasizing these pads in all sorts of chic combinations. Not only are they employed as trimming for felt and fabric shapes but sometimes entire turbans are made of them.

The color schemes are most attractive. Frequently as many as two dozen pads in blended shades are employed as trimming for a single hat.

The illustration presents a collection of early models which herald the feather-trim vogue.

Little flat wing effects enhance the hat shown first in this group. Effective pastel color combinations are worked out in these sprightly wings.

A quartette of hackle pads, in the new chevron shades, are positioned on the crown of the hat to the right at the top of this picture.

Just below to the left is a soft shape made of a felt hood. Two handsome hackle pads are arranged at the side crown of this model.

The medium-sized hat to the right will probably wear either a sleeveless or sleeved coat of tweed or covert with trousers or jodhpurs, so called, of matching material or of bedford cord properly reinforced with buckskin. There will be the usual boots, tailored sport shirt with wing collar and gay four-in-hand tie. Her hat will be a soft felt in the vagabond type as shown in the picture. Young girls like to wear jockey caps and some few are simply banding their "bob" so as to keep it in place.

For the horsewoman who aspires to ultra-elegance this autumn introduces several new and distinctive features. Correct mode declares the chic of the jodhpur ensemble, which consists of long riding breeches such as are worn by officers and their ladies in West India. These jodhpurs (Indian name) are mostly of tweed, also covert, extremely formal being of black Oxford melton. Coats are short and of "snap" styling, displaying utmost fluency in every detail. Wing collar and little bow tie are smart essentials, as is the jodhpur shoe, required with the long shows an interesting arrangement of black and white coque feathers.

Pert little novelty wings achieve a striking color effect for the final hat in this picture.

Many of the new velvet hats are also trimmed with clever feather novelties.

It is said also that ornaments will enact a major part in the trimming of the season's millinery.

Not only buckles and pins but odd metal effects, such as gold or steel nailheads sprinkled over crowns in clever design work are featured on the new fall headwear. Sometimes these are worked in solid, forming birds and animals.

Lace Frocks

Pastel-colored lace frocks are worn nightly by smart matrons for dinner wear. Shades of light green, orchid, gold, silver, flesh and coral lace, used alone or combined with chiffon, are ever prevalent.

White Shoes Favored

Despite the number of snakeskin shoes and those combining all the colors of Joseph's coat, white shoes are decidedly smart. They are garnished with fewer straps and cut-outs than has been the case and are usually of glazed kid. Also they are never worn with white stockings.

The Slip-On Glove

A closer affinity than ever seems to exist between the slip-on glove and the sheer chiffon hose that it so exactly matches. The glove may be of kid, suede, silk or fabric—what you will—but it is invariably the shade of the stockings with which it is worn.

THE SURE CURE FOR FIDGETITIS

(By D. J. Walsh.)

MRS. FRISBY was old, elegant and petulant. She lived alone with her servants in a big house set on a wide-sweeping lawn which was as smooth as a carpet and perfectly kept by Old Pete, her gardener. She had flowers in great abundance and a luxurious limousine was housed in a garage quite in keeping with all the rest of her property. Mrs. Frisby was seventy and when she went forth to call on the few persons she considered worthy of her notice she was clothed in the richest of black satin and wore diamonds of such size that she fairly dazzled the eye. She was to all appearances austere and haughty, a woman with a heart of ice. She never allowed any one to take liberties with her and she granted favors and interviews much as a queen might. She was not generous and to the people and children who lived near her she was a perfect bugaboo, for if a child or dog happened to stray on her premises it was driven away and made to feel it had committed a great crime. Everybody, even the few on whom she looked with favor, stood in awe of her.

In all her life there had been only three persons who had discovered that she had a heart, one an early sweetheart who left her for her friend, the second old Hannah, her ancient hand-maiden, and she knew "Miss Caroline" as she called her mistress, "like a book," and the third was young Doctor Dent.

Doctor Dent had been called in an emergency to attend Mrs. Frisby one day when her old family doctor had been away. Mrs. Frisby was, she said, a victim of nerves, but when Doctor Dent had taken her temperature, looked at her tongue and felt her pulse he had told her that she was not a victim of nerves but she had a bad case of fidgetitis. To the old woman, fed up on Doctor Crosby's sympathetic diagnosis, the thought of a new symptom was really refreshing, and she continued to employ the young doctor, never suspecting that he had found nothing the matter with her but ennui. When he had said fidgetitis and told her she was a fidgeter she thought she would see the joke at once, but she had not and quite revealed in the new complaint.

This new interest lasted until winter came and the snow piled up and made it impossible for her to get out in the car and then she really did get so nervous and dissatisfied with everything that she lost her appetite and began to sleep badly. Finally she developed a headache and remained in her room and then she took to her bed. She refused to see any one and when some of her acquaintances and relatives heard of her indisposition they sent flowers and books, but she hated flowers in her room and she had dozens of books and magazines that she had never opened.

Poor Hannah was at her wits' end. She offered to put cold compresses on her mistress's head and brought a bottle of Mrs. Frisby's favorite lavender smelling salts, but when she only broke down and cried and said she guessed she was homesick this frightened old Hannah so badly that she sent a hurry call for Doctor Dent and he came, and he laughingly told Mrs. Frisby, "on two wheels." When he had talked a few moments he told her if he had had time he certainly would have brought her an aluminum ring with a glass setting as big as a bean. At this she laughed. Before he went away he said he was going to send her a cure. It would arrive the next morning promptly at nine o'clock, and as it was a peculiar remedy and must be delivered directly into her hands she would have to be downstairs when it was delivered. And then he went away, and so busy was Mrs. Frisby in speculating over what the cure could be that before she realized it her headache was gone and when Hannah appeared bearing a tray upon which a dainty supper reposed she fell to and ate with a relish.

The next morning Mrs. Frisby came down to breakfast. She ate hurriedly and as soon as possible returned to the big window in the living room which commanded a view of the street. Promptly at nine o'clock a driver up and a man got out with something wrapped in a blanket in his arms. Mrs. Frisby gasped in horror. A moment later the maid ushered the man into Mrs. Frisby's presence.

The man came forward and without a word set the bundle on the rug at the old woman's feet. He then removed the blanket and there stood the funniest crooked-legged wrinkled-faced Boston bull puppy that was ever seen.

"A dog!" fairly shrieked Mrs. Frisby. "I hate dogs."

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"I hate dogs," said the man.

"Oh, but you won't this one, ma'am," said the man. "He's only six weeks old. He comes from a long line of blue ribbon winners. He's more intelligent than a—child. He will make a fine pal. I have written directions as to his diet and care and I think that's all. Good morning," and before the old woman could frame a protest the man was gone.

Left alone with a dog! She Caroline Frisby, who hated dogs. She would ring the bell for Hannah and she would order the dog sent back at once. As she rose from her chair and started for the door the puppy, whose idea of the world to date was that it was full of love, warmth, milk and dog biscuits, mistook her intention and, staggering forward on his crooked legs, began to yelp and growl and cavort and finally in a perfect ecstasy of joy rolled over on his flat back right under her feet.

Mrs. Frisby attempted to shove him out of her way with her foot, but the dog caught hold of the toe of her shoe and began worrying it. In order to get rid of him she stooped down and attempted to grab him by the collar, but the puppy, seeing a hand approaching, leaped up and kissed it with his warm moist little tongue. The old woman drew back her hand, but she stood looking with fascinated gaze into the friendly bright eyes of the little dog. Why, after all, dogs were not so bad—not this one at least. Maybe she would wait a bit before calling Hannah—there was plenty of time. It would do no harm to watch the creature a moment, and she went back to her seat by the window.

An hour later when Hannah came into the room, followed by Doctor Dent, they found Mrs. Frisby sitting by the fireplace with the puppy in her lap. Her jeweled hand was gently stroking the little fellow's warm body and he was sleeping. She looked up with a smile when she caught the astonished look on old Hannah's face, and the amused eyes of the young doctor.

"I see my cure has worked," said Doctor Dent, as he came to stand by her side.

"I think it has," answered Mrs. Frisby soberly. "But what if it hadn't?"

"I had one more thing to try," he said.

"I was going to bring my sweetheart. She is a sure cure for fidgetitis."

"Who is she, doctor?" asked Mrs. Frisby.

"Julia Markham!" fairly cried the old woman. "Why, she is my grand-niece—did you know it?"

"Not until after we were engaged," said the doctor.

"Well," said Mrs. Frisby thoughtfully, "I promised Julia's mother I would make a home for that girl, but I never have. I have always thought I hated young things."

"But do you?" asked Doctor Dent.

"Not now," answered the old woman. "And if Julia has had sense enough to get engaged to a fine young fellow like you, why, maybe it would be a good thing all the way round for her and you and I to live under this roof together."

"And the dog?" asked the doctor with a smile.

"And Brownie, of course," answered Mrs. Frisby firmly.

Aesthetics

Two aesthetes were in a drug store eating lunch. (We don't know where they got the price.)

"That is the most exquisite pinkish glow I have seen in many a day," remarked one.

"Yes," agreed the other. "It is like the evening sun against fleecy clouds."

"And the white bread makes such a perfect background. Notice the delicate shading."

"And there is just enough of it to blend. Not overdone. I detest glaring colors."

"Yes—I believe I could eat another ham sandwich."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Worshippers of Baal

Baal, the god of the ancient Canaanites and Phoenicians, to whom children used to be sacrificed, is still worshipped by the Nuba blacks, who live on the granite mountains of the Dar Nuba, or land of the Nubas, in the far south of the Sudan, just above the equatorial swamps.

In Kordofan, north of Dar Nuba, Mr. Fife found men with 12-foot spears riding on bulls, and he was told that the Messeria Arabs of Dar Hour, in southwestern Kordofan, employ bull cavalry against the Dinka tribes.

College-Bred Winners

Several compilations have been made as to how many of the people who are included in Who's Who in America are college bred, based on various editions. The results have been about the same. In round numbers, 77 out of every 100 persons figure educational data, whose names appear in the 1923-1924 edition, attended college; 64 out of every 100 were college graduates.

Make Use of Firewood in Wedding Proposal

A wedding custom on the island of Formosa was explained by Mr. E. H. de Bunsen, H. M. consular service, Japan, to the Royal Geographical society.

"Marriage among the Tsalisun Pabwans," he said, "is a matter of individual choice, and not of family arrangement. The proposal can come from either party, but it is usually the man who makes it."

"The manner of wooing is peculiar. After taking steps to acquaint the woman, through a third party, what his intentions are the suitor takes a bundle of firewood by night and leaves it outside the door of the house where she lives. If the bundle is taken inside the house, it is a sign that he may continue his suit; if left 'in situ' it is an indication that his advances are rejected."

Eventually, if all goes well, he is one evening invited to enter, and he is an invitation is held to constitute a binding engagement.

For reckoning small amounts firewood also passes for value in Formosa.

Babies Never Safe

Eighteen-month-old Dick Ross was playing in the front yard of his home at Detroit. Then his mother missed him. Fifteen minutes later she found him on the back porch with his face partly submerged in a few inches of water in a five-gallon crock. He had drowned. That is why mothers who do housework and watch babies become gray in the process.—Capper's Weekly.

Chicago Gets Championship Bout

Jack Dempsey will climb into the ring in Soldier field, at Chicago, and in ten rounds try to regain the world's heavyweight championship he lost in September last to Gene Tunney, the fighting marine. The scene of the battle between the former champion and the boxing hero of the A. E. F. was decided when members of the south park board voted, four to one, to lease the stadium for the fight. The board will receive $100,000 rental for one night's use of the war memorial. The photograph shows Dempsey and Tunney.

Trotter Sold for a Song Is Big Winner

Clayworth, Dr. Roy Davis' trotter, which won enough heats to clinch first place in the $20,000 Secor hotel stake at Toledo, sold for $100 two years ago.

He made a reputation for "outlawry" in his younger days. Then he came under the eyes of Bob Plaxico, a half-mile-track driver, who conquered him and made a success on the shorter course with him.

Plaxico drove him in the Secor Hotel stake, beating one horse that was bought for $17,000 and one for which $25,000 was refused a few days ago.

Much credit for the brilliant spurt of the Philadelphia National league team this season is due to the splendid pitching of Jack Scott, whom Manager Stuffy McInnis secured from the New York Giants this spring.

Golf has been played in South Dakota since 1835, when the first club was formed at Yankton.

England has not developed a world's heavyweight pugilistic champion since the late Bob Fitzsimmons left Cornwall, nearly thirty-five years ago.

Women taking part in the Olympic games next year will enter a section of five events, which have been added to the program for female competition.

With four different golf courses and a clubhouse that cost over $1,000,000, Olympia fields, scene of the next national open tournament, is a veritable golfer's paradise.

DIAMOND
PICK-UPS

Third Baseman Charley Pick is making good for Joe McCarthy.

Wilbert Robinson, Brooklyn manager, once had ambitions to be a musician.

It has remained for the feminine athlete to make tennis a rival in popular interest to baseball.

Mike Kircher, former Syracuse star, has been signed by George Mogridge for his Rochester Internationals.

The Boston Red Sox announce the outright release of Ruddy Sommers, Louisville (Ky.) southpaw pitcher.

Joe Marty, right-handed pitcher of the Lincoln Western league club, has been sold to the New York American league club.

Babe Herman, Brooklyn first-sacker, looks like a second Hal Chase afield one day and like a ten-year-old tot the next day.

Experts are crying that John McGraw was the loser in the deal that sent Greenfield, Farrell and McQuillan to the Boston Braves.

Now and then you still see an old-style fat catcher in baseball who, by diligent running, can stretch the average triple into a double.

Babe Ruth says he ought to be good for at least five more years in the majors. He started his career in 1914 and is thirty-three years old.

Manager Dan Howley has announced that at least eight players now drawing salaries from the St. Louis Americans will not be with the club next season.

We wonder just what the Yankee pay roll will look like when Ruth, Gehrig and Lazzari get through bickering with Colonel Ruppert for next year's contracts.

The New York Yankees have more veterans than any other major league team, six players on the roster being "ten-year men"—Rueher, Shawkey, Shocker, Penneck, Ruth and Dugan.

Rather surprising that Leon Ames, who started for the New York Giants years ago, didn't send his son to McGraw instead of Pittsburgh. The boy was Ohio State's star pitcher this year.

"Devo" Lebourveau, Toledo American association outfielder and leading hitter of the league in 1923, has been traded to the Philadelphia Athletics for two players and a cash consideration.

Old-timers who carry a buckeye for luck will be glad to know that the Cleveland pitcher of that name gave 13 hits, walked four men, hit a batter, made three wild pitches and won his game.

What has become of the youth who had a fancy to become a major league ball player? The Pirates have dragged in Heinie Groh for third base and Joe Bush pitched a 4-1 victory in his debut with the Giants.

After scouting around for two months the Reds have discovered a shortstop in Outfielder Bill Zitsmann. Placed on the infield in an emergency move, Zitsmann promises to become the regular custodian of the position.

Southern California's baseball team will make a tour of Japan during the 1928 season. If arrangements now under way are completed, The Trojans expect to play 20 games in Japan under the auspices of the University of Waseda.

According to records of a large insurance company, baseball is the most dangerous sport, with accidents under the classification "in country or woods" following. Golf is third in hazards of sports.

Only the Yankees, rather Gehrig and Ruth, now attract the cash customers. When the Washingtons, the last of the challengers, were bowled over in 12 to 1 and 21 to 1 scores, the fans leaned back in their chairs to wait for the finish next October.

Grid Players Tune
Up in the Movies

Work as extras in motion picture productions constitutes the major part of summer occupations of Southern California football men. Other work has been hard to procure, and the only labor running movies appearances a respectable race, is lifeguard duties and fruit ranching.

Trojan athletes have been filling in for football, baseball, swimming, track and other sport scenes. Among those now on location are Capt. Mory Drury, Don Williams, Jesse Hibbs, Charles Boren, Marion Morrison, Lowry, McCaslin, Don Moses and Clark Galloway.

WABBLING HURLERS
ARE SOON YANKED

Few Pitchers Permitted to Work Out of Trouble.

Managers in the majors are so intent on winning games these days that they take few chances on a pitcher, once he has shown a disposition to wobble. A moundman who gets himself into trouble is seldom allowed to work out his own salvation or take the consequences. There is too much at stake.

He is derelicted by most pilots the moment his predicament is realized. It is nothing out of the ordinary to see a team use two hurlers in the same game. In fact, it has become so common that it is almost the rule. And in many instances three or four moundmen are called upon in the course of an exciting game, in which one side is doing a lot of hitting. There have been several contests this year in which the batteries of both teams were very much "on" with the result that there has been a regular procession of pitchers to and from the mound.

Recently Rogers Hornsby bemoaned the fact that so few pitchers "go the route." It is not their fault. They have no say-so in the matter. The manager's word is law, and when he says "To the showers," the pitcher must obey.

Some critics believe the pinch pitcher is being overplayed. One of the points out that Miller Huggins is inclined to allow the Yankee hurlers to go the limit, regardless of success or failure, and he believes this policy accounts in great measure for the Yanks' success.

He adds: "A pitcher who starts a game and does not finish it has done his day's work. Yet too often he is credited with the victory because he lead which his mates piled up, for he is maintained by some chucker who relieved him."

Stanford Credits Sport

Instruction This Fall

Coaches of major sports at Stanford will be required to give regular academic courses in their specialties next year as the result of changes sponsored by Dr. Thomas A. Story, new director of physical education.

Glenn "Pop" Warner, football coach, is to give two courses next fall quarter. One will be in elementary theory and the other for men with greater knowledge of football, who are interested in learning the game from a coach's standpoint. Regular academic credit will be given.

For the first time, physical education requirements may be worked out by practicing golf. Six driving courses have been erected and students will be allowed to sign for courses in golf.

Sting Expected to Race

Again in Fall Campaign

Nursed back to health after an attack of the glanders that nearly caused his death, Sting, who won the Excelsior Handicap, the Metropolitan and the Suburban two years ago, may race this fall at the Empire City track, the property of the owner, James Butler.

A strong bond of affection binds horse and man. Offered $150,000 for the thoroughbred, Butler replied: "There are a lot of men in this world who have $150,000 or maybe a million, but there is only one man who has Sting."

Both Butler and the trainer of his stable believe the horse will carry silks again.

The baseball coaching magic of William J. ("Billy") Disch, who just brought the University of Texas to its fifteenth Southwest conference championship in sixteen years. The Longhorns' annexation of the conference crown at the end of the recent season made the third time marked since 1923. That year marked the end of the Longhorn loss in sixteen years, the championship going to Baylor university at Waco. It is probable that Texas will get the flag again in 1928.
